

About Us

A New Company

HuntMountain Resources is a U.S.-based junior exploration company engaged in the acquisition, exploration and development of precious metal properties throughout North and South America.

Unprecedented U.S. trade deficits, record energy prices, the potential demise of the U.S. dollar, and growing anticipation of inflationary pressures have contributed to a new public interest in precious metals. Numerous junior exploration companies have taken advantage of the consequent movement of capital into the resource markets, but few, if any of these groups can boast of the strength and professional experience offered by the HuntMountain management team.

Well-financed and globally-connected, HuntMountain Resources seeks to distinguish itself from the junior exploration crowd and increase shareholder value through patience, perseverance, and prudent management of investor capital.

A Legacy of Success

The HuntMountain Resources team is comprised of individuals who are no strangers to success. From building a 900-employee manufacturing firm to securing ownership of a $4 billion silver-copper deposit to discovering and evaluating world-class mineral deposits, the depth of HuntMountain's leadership should inspire confidence throughout the broader investment community.

HuntMountain's management is committed to realizing the success attained in its previous endeavors and weathering the storms of the volatile precious metals and commodities cycles. Good companies are found, but great companies are made.

A Philosophy of Value

Shareholder value is increased by adopting a comprehensive strategy and focusing resources to achieve identified goals and objectives. HuntMountain Resources believes its value is enhanced by results from the ground rather than hype from the market. Precious metal exploration is not for the faint of heart, and only those companies focused on consistent performance and long-term results can turn possibilities into success.

HuntMountain's value-based approach to mineral exploration will result in long-term success for the company and a reputation of integrity in the marketplace. We hope you share our philosophy and invite you to explore the opportunities available with HuntMountain Resources.